Caring for the Caregiver

A key tool for operationalizing nurturing care
Caregivers' emotional well-being is critical for child development

- Caregivers' emotional well-being impacts their ability to provide nurturing care
- Efforts to help children are unlikely to succeed unless they also support caregivers (Lancet, 2016)
- Need to empower caregivers with emotional availability, knowledge, skills, access to resources for caregiving
Vision

Provide adequate counselling and parenting support services that improve:

- caregivers’ emotional wellbeing
- caregiver-child interactions/relationship
- child development outcomes

Key learnings - Example from Serbia

CFC promotes/facilitates:

• Adoption of a family centered approach.

• Deeper level of understanding of vulnerability, stigma and deprivation, and barriers to sensitive/positive parenting from the parents’ perspective.

• Support for parents should be about relationship and connection. A trusting relationship with a FLW is a unique experience for caregivers.

• Move from parent's educators to collaborative partners with parents. Began to see caregivers differently and build on their strengths.

• Enhanced understanding that supported parents can provide comfort, connection, emotional security, stimulation and learning through playful interactions. This is also the best strategy for preventing violent discipline.
‘The pandemic has undoubtedly left a mark on each parent in the world. This program came at the right moment… We now encourage caregivers to speak openly about their feelings, without fear that they will be stigmatized or labelled as bad parents because they are worried, unhappy or unable to enjoy the parenting role.’
