Strengthening Nurturing Care in Humanitarian Response

Humanitarian actors can deliver life-saving services and interventions to address children's needs, mitigating the negative impact of emergencies. Strong evidence supports equitable, comprehensive programs for better child health outcomes during crises. This second webinar of the series will present examples from Afghanistan, Colombia, Ethiopia, Myanmar, and Syria of age-appropriate interventions where nurturing care approaches have been successfully integrated into health responses and systems, significantly shaping responsive caregiving, early learning, adequate nutrition, good health, and protection of children, which are critical for children's healthy development.
